

2023 Choose Love Awareness Love-In-Action Art Contest

"The opposite of anxiety is positive action. Doing something positive with kids, and helping others can ease stress. Engaging in a physical activity can also help you recover, restore, and find hope. We are stronger together. Model the power of uniting with others to your children." – Scarlett Lewis

The Love-in-Action Art Contest is seeking artwork that shows how you turn your negative feelings or experiences into positive action. When you are feeling anxiety, stress, sadness, or anger, what action do you take to overcome those negative feelings? Everyone has different ways to help them feel better. You might pet your dog, go for a run, draw or paint, shoot hoops, do something kind for others, or hug someone. Is there a special place you go for comfort like the beach, the park, a special spot in your house? Is there someone special that you talk to like a parent, friend, sibling, or teacher? There are so many ways to take action that will lead to happier or calmer feelings.

Submissions: Original drawings. Note: All artwork must be on an 8.5x11 paper or canvas. Submissions become the property of the Choose Love Movement and may be used by the Movement for marketing purposes (online or in print).

Who: Elementary, Middle, and High School students.
